SEPP

is a six-headed formation founded as an octet in 2017 by the Austrian clarinetist Christopher Haritzer. The sextet is dedicated to Christopher's grandfather: Josef Lackner (commonly called "Sepp") from Heiligenblut, Carinthia.

Sepp always trusted his instincts to adopt new and not always harmless ways, the latter, for example, to protect his home community from avalanche disasters.

Christopher - together with a fine artist collective from the Czech Republic, Germany and various regions of Austria - is now commemorating this attitude, which relies on his own gut feeling. The six musicians are also on their way to finding new ways by making only original compositions, own texts and lyrics by Italian author Matthias Vieider.

"SEPP. A wide field is cultivated here. Here beds of different plants are looked after: jazz and folk music from different regions, free improvisation and bound dance rhythms. Right, it doesn't sound very special at first - after all, we've been living in the field of polystyling for decades - but I haven't seen such a range in a long time. "
